EXCHANGE PROGRAM WITH OBERLIN COLLEGE BEGINS THIS SEMESTER

Two Gallaudet students, Marie Philip, a junior sociology major, and Cynthia Lohr, a senior majoring in English, will spend the spring semester as full-time undergraduate students at Oberlin College, Oberlin, Ohio. In exchange, Linda Kerwin, a senior at Oberlin, will register at Gallaudet this week for a full-time program in audiology and speech and linguistics for the coming semester.

As part of Oberlin's Interim Study Program given between the fall and spring semesters, Shirley Stein is conducting an orientation to deafness and manual skills workshop for 30 faculty members and students on the Oberlin campus. Last January, two students also from Oberlin worked in the Tutorial Center here as their independent study project, and the exchange program with Oberlin developed as a result of their experiences here.

Four other hearing students will also be at Gallaudet this semester as full-time students: Kathy Quigley and Charles Pennington from Clarion State College; Laurie Bolster from the University of Virginia, Northern Center; and Steve Williams from Western Maryland College. These students have expressed an interest in careers working with the deaf.
